Abstract

A sampling apparatus capable of introducing various kinds of samples in a measuring unit in turns securely and simply while avoiding excess sampling and mix of bubbles. In particular, a sampling apparatus constructed so as to introduce a liquid sample in densimeter (1) by means of peristaltic pump (3). Determining means (62) judges whether or not the sample has been introduced, and controller (6) controls the peristaltic pump in accordance with determination result.